DEFINITIONS

“Bullying” is repeated and unreasonable behaviour directed towards a person or group of persons that creates a risk to health and safety. It includes behaviour that could be expected to intimidate, offend, degrade, humiliate, undermine or threaten.

“Repeated behaviour” refers to the persistent nature of the behavior and can involve a range of behaviours over time.

“Unreasonable behaviour” is behaviour that a reasonable person, having considered the circumstances would see as unreasonable, including behavior that is victimising, humiliating, intimidating or threatening.

Examples of behavior, whether intentional or unintentional, that may be considered to be bullying if they are repeated, unreasonable and create a risk to health and safety include but are not limited to:

- abusive, insulting or offensive language or comments
- unjustified criticism or complaints
- deliberately excluding someone from station activities
- withholding information that is vital for effective performance as a presenter
- setting unreasonable timelines or constantly changing deadlines
- setting tasks that are unreasonably below or beyond a person’s skill level
- denying access to information, supervision, consultation or resources to the detriment of the presenter and/or member
- spreading misinformation or malicious rumours

- changing agreed to arrangements such as rosters and leave to deliberately inconvenience a particular member or members.

Bullying can be carried out in a variety of ways including through email, text or social media channels.

Bullying can occur between members (sideways), from supervisors to presenters (downwards), or presenters to supervisors (upwards).

Reasonable management action is not considered to be bullying if it is carried out lawfully and in a reasonable manner in the circumstances. Examples of reasonable management action include but are not limited to:

- setting reasonable goals, standards and deadlines
- informing a member/presenter about unsatisfactory work performance in an honest, fair and constructive way
- taking disciplinary action, including suspension or terminating membership.

Differences of opinion and disagreements are generally not considered to be bullying.

Bullying that directly inflicts physical pain, harm, or humiliation amounts to assault and/or battery and should be dealt with as a police matter (see below).

- this policy is displayed on the web site and is easily accessible to all volunteers and to the community in general..

PROCEDURES

Complaints Procedures

If a volunteer feels comfortable in doing so, it is preferable to raise the issue with the person directly with a view to resolving the issue by discussion. The volunteer should identify the offensive behaviour, explain that the behaviour is unwelcome and offensive and ask that the behaviour stops.

If the behaviour continues, or if the volunteer feels unable to speak to the person(s) directly, they should contact a supervisor or senior executive member with whom they feel comfortable. The selected person will provide support and ascertain the nature of the complaint or refer it onto senior management..

Informal Intervention

The SE member will explain the rights and responsibilities of the volunteer under the relevant policy and procedures.

Informal intervention may be done through a process of either mediation or conciliation. During informal intervention the respondent will be made aware of the allegations being made against them and given the right to respond. Interventions at this stage should adopt a confidential, non-confrontational approach with a view to resolving the issue.

This procedure will be complete when the alleged harasser respects the individual's request to cease unwanted and unwelcome behaviour, or when the complainant accepts that the behaviour is not properly described as bullying. If neither of these outcomes occurs, the organisation's formal procedure should be followed.

Formal Complaints Procedure

The formal complaint procedure involves a formal investigation of the complaint. Formal investigations may be conducted internally (by a member of the senior executive or by the whole executive)..

An investigation involves collecting information about the complaint and then making a finding based on the available information as to whether or not the alleged behaviour occurred. Once a finding is made, the investigator will make recommendations about resolving the complaint.

The investigator may need to interview the parties involved (which may include the complainant, the respondent, and any witnesses) to obtain information regarding the complaint. The investigator will comprehensively and accurately document all information obtained during the interviews including the parties involved, timing, location, and nature of conduct complained against.

If the investigator considers it appropriate for the safe and efficient conduct of an investigation, volunteers may be stood down from presenting while the investigation is carried out.

Throughout the investigation process, all parties involved in the investigation will be regularly kept informed about the investigation.

The findings as to whether bullying has occurred will be determined on the basis of the evidence, and on the balance of probabilities.

On the basis of the findings, possible outcomes of the investigation may include, but will not be limited to, any combination of the following:

- Counselling
- Disciplinary action (including an up to termination of membership at Monaro Community Radio Inc.)
- Official warning
- Formal apology and/or an undertaking that the behaviour will cease
- Mediation where the parties to the complaint agree to a mutually acceptable resolution.

On completion of the investigation, all parties will be informed about the investigation findings and the outcome of the investigation.

Following an investigation concerning a bullying complaint (irrespective of the findings), the senior executives will:

- consult with the parties involved to monitor the situation and their wellbeing; and
- educate and remind all volunteers of their obligations and responsibilities in relation to providing an environment free from bullying

Procedures for Dealing with Criminal Conduct

Some forms of severe behaviour (physical attack, for example, or obscene phone calls) may constitute criminal conduct. While Monaro Community Radio Inc. is committed to treat most complaints about bullying at an organisational level as far as possible, this type of conduct is not suited to internal resolution. Such complaints should be treated by the criminal justice system. Volunteers should be advised of the option of police support or intervention. It is not the obligation or duty of the organisation to report such matters to the police on behalf of the complainant.

Monaro Community Radio Inc. acknowledges the right of any volunteer to appeal any decision made by senior executive relating to any complaints on bullying. As with bullying complaints, all address to appeal should be made in writing. The written application to appeal the outcome of a bullying complaint should be to the senior executive within fourteen days of a decision being handed down.
